As part of his Deep in A Dream-Central Park series, fine art photographer Michael Massaia shot these dreamlike images of the arches and tunnels scattered across the park. The toned gelatin silver contact prints in gold, selenium, and sepia gives the images a certain warmth and makes the tunnels rather inviting.

2020 will be the 8th year for Central Park Artists Open Studios. For the safety of our artists and visiting art enthusiasts, we have made the decision to proceed with a virtual tour. The ability to see the process and talk to the artists about their work in their home studios has been the strength of this event and we have every intention to continue that model next year.

This is a nice quiet park named after the 2nd Secretary-General of the United Nations. We can set up base in it and then roam a bit and sketch the UN itself and other landmark buildings, not to mention the park itself, which often has rotating art exhibits. We'll meet at the West end of the park, at 2nd Ave and 47th street.
