Ideology And Rural Differentiation In

V. I. Lenin tended to be the principal classical antecedent of theories of rural class differentiation (e.g., de Janvry 1980; Friedland et al. 1981; Havens et al. 1986), which tended to foresee agriculture undergoing differentiation into capital and labor, in much the same way that had occurred in nonfarm industry. A. V.

Arusha also sought to halt an increasing social and economic differentiation among farmers. In so far as guidelines are provided for rural change, they are laid out in those parts of the Arusha formulations known as Ujamaa Vijijini or "Socialism and Rural Development" and in "Education and Self-Reliance."

An Ideology for Africa | Foreign Affairs

While recognising the enduring influence of the rural-urban dichotomy as a powerful ideology and a concept that remains progressively inscribed in people's minds, E. C. Thompson et al. argue against treating "the rural" and "the urban" as separate units of analysis and spatially distinct domains (p. 5).
