Most people look at the extension of a file and then guess the type of file from that extension. For example, when you see a file with an extension of gif, jpg, bmp, or png you think of an image file, and when you see a file with an extension of zip, you assume the file has been compressed using a zip compression utility.

Determine a File Type Using the 'file' Linux Command

you're asking two different things, so which are you really interested in: the file extension to tell you "what kind of file it is" (which can be a blatant lie, because a .jpg file could actually be a php script named .jpg), or the actual file type based on the data in the file (which requires opening the file, looking at the byte layout, and matching it against known layouts) - Mike 'Pomax ...
